The 13th Benesse Prize was presented in collaboration with SAM, the organizer of Singapore Biennale 2022. The prize recognizes an artist whose work embodies an experimental and critical spirit and who has the potential to create works that relate to Benesse’s philosophy of “well-being”. The winner of the 13th Benesse Prize was selected by a panel of international jury members. The jury shortlisted 5 Singapore Biennale artists: Pratchaya Phinthong (Thailand), Walid Raad (Lebanon), Sawangwongse Yawnghwe (Myanmar) Araya Rasdjarmreansook (Thailand) and Haegue Yang. Haegue Yang was ultimately selected as the winner of the 13th Benesse Prize.

“The jury is delighted to award the Benesse Prize to Haegue Yang whose practice interweaves cross-cultural knowledge, a moving regard for materiality and tradition, through a playful visual language. Yang has consistently experimented with form and has challenged the known orientations and functions of materials to create new experiences and aesthetics. Yang works collaboratively with local artisans to produce various sculptural installations, informed by interdisciplinary approaches including architecture, design, sound and performance to the objects she creates. We feel Yang’s ability to create something truly special, and believe her project will be a significant addition to the already illustrious works that have found their home on the island of Naoshima.”

Haegue Yang (b. 1971) is Professor of Fine Arts at the Staedelschule in Frankfurt am Main. Yang's practice spans a wide range of media, from paper collage to performative sculpture and large-scale installations, often featuring everyday objects, in addition to labor-intensive woven sculptures. Articulated in an abstract visual vocabulary, her anthropomorphic Intermediates sculptures often play with the notion of 'the folk' being a cultural idea, while also attempting to transcend it as being a mere tradition of specific cultures. Her multisensory environments made of venetian blinds suggest uncontrollable and fleeting connotations of time, place, figures, and experiences that connect us in this non-sharable field of perception. She currently lives and works in Berlin and Seoul.

About the Benesse Prize

The Benesse Prize was established in 1995 when Fukutake Publishing Co., Ltd. changed its corporate name to Benesse Corporation, and it was first awarded at the Venice Biennale in the same year. It was created to recognize the artistic endeavours of outstanding artists and support those who embody the corporate philosophy of the Benesse Group, which is "Well-Being."

Since the 11th Benesse Prize (2016), the Benesse Prize has shifted its focus to Asia, and has been presented to artists participating in the Singapore Biennale in collaboration with Singapore Art Museum.

In addition to a cash prize of JPY 3 million, the winning artist(s) receives a commission to create an artwork to be exhibited at Benesse Art Site Naoshima, Japan, or the opportunity to have their works collected at the Site.

Benesse Art Site Naoshima and SAM will continue the partnership with a joint exhibition on the Benesse Prize at the Singapore Biennale in Naoshima in 2024.
